

INTRODUCING

for my children

for my children is a simple app I wish my mother had before she died.

It would have let her share those places that were special in her life. Her first school. First home. Favourite cafe. First job. The place she met my father. The old playground she played in as a child – which is now a block of flats. Places I would love to visit and stand today if I only knew where they were.

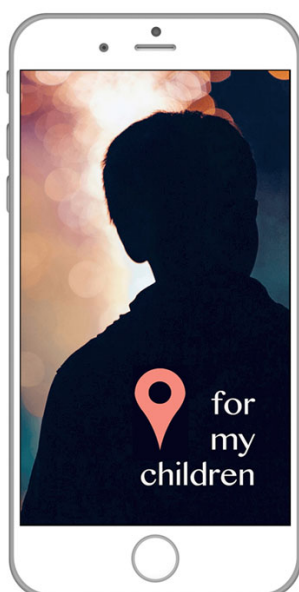

Memories are precious. Places are precious. for my children lets you create your own memory book so your friends, your family, your children – and their children – can one day walk in your footsteps and revisit them.

What's more you can add to your memory book any time, helping you effortlessly build a lifetime of memories.

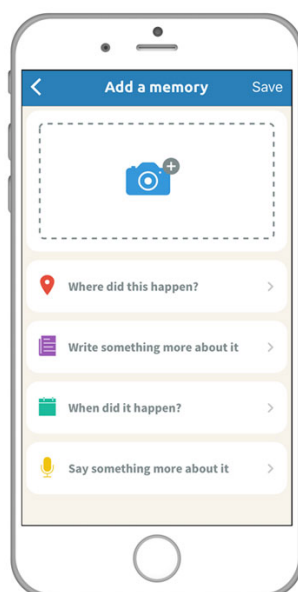

The first version is currently only available for iPhone and iPod Touch and lets you take or upload a photo, pin it on a map, add some text and a date and – if you want to add an extra personal touch – record some audio commentary to go with it. The app keeps your memories safely in a memory book that sits on your device.

Future versions – which will include support for Android – will allow you to securely upload your memories to an online memory book allowing invited friends and family to access it. You'll also be able to choose if you want any of your memories made public. After all, some of your special places might be special places for other people, too.

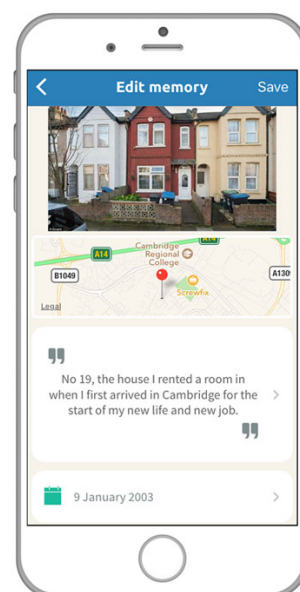

for my children is a simple app that helps you save and share memories of special places that mean something to you in your life

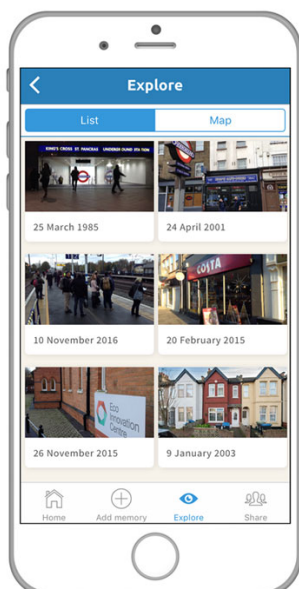

Upload a photo, pin it on a map, add some text and a date and - for an extra personal touch - record some audio to go with it

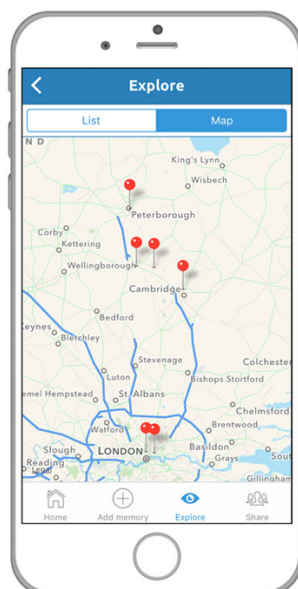

Memories are precious. Save yours so friends, family, your children - and their children - can walk in your footsteps and relive them

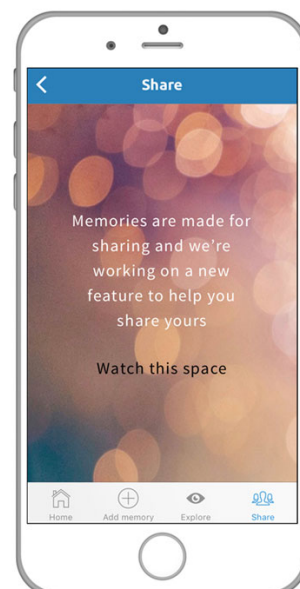

You can easily browse through your memory book and add, delete or edit entries at any time - helping you effortlessly build a lifetime of memories

You can also view your memories on a map making it easier for you, your family and your friends to go back and visit your special places

While you're busy building your own memory book, we'll be busy adding a new feature to let you share it online

For the official app website and a link to download the app:

www.formychildren.me

for my children is a kiwanja.net initiative